Dear Shareholder,

This annual report covers the 12-month Reporting Period ended 31 December 2025 (the “Reporting Period”). On the subsequent pages, you will find details regarding investment results and a discussion of certain factors that affected performance during the Reporting Period.

Several central banks adjusted interest rates amid shifting inflation and growth outlooks. Concerns over U.S. trade tariffs and geopolitical issues also affected markets.

Several central banks continued to adjust monetary policy

Inflation readings improved for many major economies, although they generally remained above central bank targets. U.S. tariff rates raised global policy uncertainty, although the impact was less than feared in many cases. Against this backdrop and during the Reporting Period, the U.S. Federal Reserve (the “Fed”) kept interest rates on hold until it lowered interest rates in September, November and December 2025, driven by concerns over downside risks to the labor market. During the Reporting Period, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England both cut interest rates four times due to growth concerns. In contrast, the Bank of Japan raised interest rates twice during the Reporting Period.

Financial markets delivered solid returns

The yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury benchmark decreased during the Reporting Period. Yields on 10-year government bonds in many other developed markets were mixed. The global bond market delivered solid returns, with lower-rated bonds generally outperforming higher-rated bonds. Global equity returns were strong, led by emerging markets and Japan. In the commodity market, gold and copper hit several all-time highs while oil prices declined. In the currency market, the U.S. dollar weakened against the euro, British pound sterling and Japanese yen.

With our time-tested investment process, PIMCO aims to leverage the structural advantages of active bond management for the benefit of our clients. We continue to work diligently to navigate dynamic global markets and manage the assets that you have entrusted to us. We encourage you to speak with your financial advisor about your goals and to visit global.pimco.com for our latest insights.

Sincerely,

Craig A. Dawson

Important Information About the Funds

This material is authorised for use only when preceded or accompanied by the current PIMCO Funds: Global Investors Series plc Prospectus. Investors should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of these Funds carefully before investing. This and other information is contained in the Prospectus. Please read the Prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

We believe that bond funds have an important role to play in a well-diversified investment portfolio. It is important to note, however, that in an environment where interest rates may trend upward, rising rates will negatively impact the performance of most bond funds, and fixed income securities held by a Fund are likely to decrease in value. The price volatility of fixed income securities can also increase during periods of rising interest rates, resulting in increased losses to a Fund. Bond funds and individual bonds with a longer duration (a measure used to determine the sensitivity of a security's price to changes in interest rates) tend to be more sensitive to changes in interest rates, usually making them more volatile than securities or funds with shorter durations. The longer-term performance of most bond funds has benefited from capital gains in part resulting from an extended period of declining interest rates. In the event interest rates increase, these capital gains should not be expected to recur.

The Funds may be subject to various risks in addition to those described above, in the Funds' Prospectus and in the Financial Risks section of the Notes to Financial Statements. Some of these risks may include, but are not limited to, the following: real rate risk, derivative risk, small company risk, foreign security risk, high-yield security risk, specific sector investment risks and epidemic/pandemic related risk. The Funds may use derivative instruments for hedging purposes or as part of an investment strategy. The use of these instruments may involve certain costs and risks such as liquidity risk, interest rate risk, market risk, credit risk, management risk and the risk that a Fund could not close out a position when it would be most advantageous to do so. Funds investing in derivatives could lose more than the principal amount invested in these instruments. Investing in foreign securities may entail risk due to foreign economic and political developments; this risk may be enhanced when investing in emerging markets. High-yield bonds typically have a lower credit rating than other bonds. Lower rated bonds generally involve a greater risk to principal than higher rated bonds. Smaller companies may be more volatile than larger companies and may entail more risk. Concentrating investments in individual sectors may add additional risk and volatility compared to a diversified fund.

Certain Funds may pursue an environmental, social and governance (ESG) investing strategy, which typically selects or excludes securities of certain issuers for reasons other than financial performance. Such strategy carries the risk that a Fund's performance will differ from similar funds that do not utilise an ESG investing strategy. For example, the application of this strategy could affect a Fund's exposure to certain sectors or types of investments, which could negatively impact a Fund's performance. There is no guarantee that the factors utilised by the Investment Advisor will reflect the opinions of any particular investor, and the factors utilised by the Investment Advisor may differ from the factors that any particular investor considers relevant in evaluating an issuer's ESG practices. Future ESG development and regulation may impact a Fund's implementation of its investment strategy. In addition, there may be cost implications arising from ESG related due diligence, increased reporting and use of third-party ESG data providers.

Classifications of Fund portfolio holdings in this report are made according to financial reporting standards. The classification of a particular portfolio holding as shown in the Schedule of Investments and other sections of this report may differ from the classification used for the Fund's compliance calculations, including those used in the Fund's Prospectus, investment objectives, regulatory, and other investment limitations and policies, which may be based on different asset class, sector or geographical classifications. All Funds are separately monitored for compliance with respect to the Prospectus and regulatory requirements. Within the Schedule of Investments specific portfolio holdings may be aggregated where investments have the same attributes (i.e. coupon rates and maturity dates).

The geographical classifications of securities in this report are classified by the country of incorporation of a holding. In certain instances, a security's country of incorporation may be different from its country of economic exposure.

On each individual Fund Summary page in this Annual Report, the net performance chart measures performance assuming that all dividend and capital gain distributions were reinvested. Returns do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on: (i) Fund distributions; or (ii) the redemption of Fund shares. The net performance chart measures each Fund's performance against the performance of a broad-based securities market index (benchmark index). Each Fund's past performance, before and after taxes, is not necessarily an indication of how the Fund will perform in the future. An investment in a Fund is not a deposit in a bank and is not guaranteed or insured by any government agency. It is possible to lose money on investments in the Funds. The value of and income from shares in the Fund may go up or down and you may not get back the amount you have invested in the Funds.

Investment Objective and Strategy Overview

Commodity Real Return Fund seeks to maximise total return consistent with prudent investment management by investing in derivative instruments (which may be listed or OTC), including swap agreements, futures, options on futures and structured notes and commodity index-linked notes, which enable it to gain exposures to any of the indices and sub-indices referencing commodities (including but not limited to any index within the Bloomberg Commodity family of indices) which meet with the requirements of and have, where necessary, been cleared by the Central Bank of Ireland. Details of any indices utilised by the Fund and the types of commodities they reference will be available from the Investment Advisor upon request. These instruments will provide exposure to the investment returns of the commodities markets without investing directly in physical commodities, and will be backed by an actively managed portfolio of global Fixed Income Instruments (as defined in the Prospectus). The Fund may also invest in common and preferred stocks as well as convertible securities of issuers in commodity-related industries.

Fund Insights

- » Eurozone yield curve positioning, specifically long exposure to intermediate maturities combined with short exposure to long-term maturities, contributed to relative performance, as the Eurozone yield curve steepened
- » Interest rate strategies in the U.S., including a yield curve steepening position and short exposure to swap spreads, contributed to relative performance, as the U.S. yield curve steepened and swap spreads widened

The Investment Advisor will select the Fund's country and currency composition based on its evaluation of relative interest rates, inflation rates, exchange rates, monetary and fiscal policies, trade and current account balances, and other specific factors the Investment Advisor believes to be relevant. The Fund is likely to concentrate its investments in Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America and the emerging countries of Europe. The Fund may invest in instruments whose return is based on the return of an emerging market security such as a derivative instrument, rather than investing directly in emerging market securities.
